In a recent mailer we produced on behalf of our client, Frederick Frazier, we mistakenly stated that Frazier had secured the highest NRA rating (AQ) for a first-time candidate. Frazier does not have that rating. He is rated "?".

We deeply regret this error. We have the utmost respect for the National Rifle Association and the excellent work it does advocating for our Second Amendment rights and our God-given right to self-defense. Even though the mistake was unintentional (we have produced over one hundred pieces of creative collateral for this campaign, and this mailer is the only instance of the problem), we apologize for misrepresenting the NRA rating system in this instance.

Our client was unaware of the error. As a police officer who carries a gun every day for a living, he respects the NRA and their mission.
